'THAT OTHERS MAY LIVE' Tragic Fire Is Studied. "Maybe a terrible tragedy like this will make people aware of the fire which is always just around the corner in many homes. But it's a horrible way to learn so that others may live." This was the reaction of one of a small group who on Saturday accompanied Captain John T. Dempster, Mercer County fire marshal, through the seared and blackened interior of the Edward McMahon home just off Princeton Pike.

The grim, slow inspection of the bleak, dark house where six had died by fire a few days previous was only one of many which "Cap" Dempster has made there, and will continue to make, in search of a definite answer to the agonizing question: "Why?" With Captain Dempster on Saturday were two electrical engineers from RCA, a member of Princeton's Borough engineering office and two experts from Public Service.

There were also representatives from the neighborhood in which the McMahon house stands. But, regardless of who they were, they had only one purpose in being there — to try to help establish the cause and thereby to prevent recurrences.

Getting at the cause can best be done by first eliminating non-causes. One of those already ruled out as a possibility is the gas furnace, as "Cap" Dempster said when the group reached the basement. "Absolutely no sign of fire anywhere here," he pointed out.

Source of Trouble. On the first floor Captain Dempster stooped down to indicate a small area in the family room where a wall had been and where the uprights had been gnawed through by the flames. "That's the place where it started," he said.

The fire had rolled through the hall and up the stairs, it is thought, when someone suddenly aware of the danger below had opened a window on the second floor. The 600 degree heat had then surged upwards and done its hideous damage.

The precise origin and cause of the fire, however, are still not known. Suspect are an upholstered settee which had stood along the wall and an electrical connection in the same four-square-foot location indicated by Captain Dempster.

"Might Have Been." In the firm belief that an ounce of prevention is worth more than any amount of cure in facing the hazards of fire, TOWN TOPICS talked with a number of authorities about the tragedy. Captain Dempster, Princeton Fire Chief Robert F. Mooney, Princeton Borough Building Inspector Bernard Glover and Lawrence Township Building Inspector Mark Cermele all stressed in some way the oft-repeated, but frequently overlooked, caution: "A home is no safer than you keep it."

For example, in addition to the savage McMahon fire, two others in recent weeks in Princeton might have been equally disastrous. In one on Westerly Road, in which the fire was confined to the living room, the family escaped because a ten-year-old was awakened by the crackling of flames and by the heat.

Fortunately, because the youngster awoke, the family escaped unharmed — though the extreme heat billowing up eventually melted the thermostat in the upstairs hall. In the second fire, on Murray Place, the occupants also escaped in time although, according to Fire Chief Mooney, the heat in the upper floors was so intense that firemen could not search the attic until the blaze downstairs was extinguished.

"People sometimes wonder why we break second-story windows and why we open holes in a roof during a fire," said Chief Mooney, all of whose department members are volunteers but are thoroughly trained in fire-fighting procedures. "We do this for two reasons: to reduce the unbearable heat and, by creating a vent, to find more quickly the exact location of the fire."

How to Avoid Fire Disaster. It is the opinion of these men, who have spent years in combatting and studying fires or in inspecting buildings for safety-compliance, that there are a comparatively few precautions which would greatly lessen the subtle, haunting threat of fire in Princeton homes.

First, leave no open fires unattended — or unextinguished before you go to bed. Sounds obvious? But don't forget that cigarettes are, in effect, open fire and that the two recent non-fatal fires (and perhaps the McMahon blaze) may have been started that way.

Also, keep matches and lighters away from children and teach youngsters to have the greatest respect for any fire-making object. Also obvious? But not easy, as anyone with children, especially boys, knows.

On Saturday during Captain Dempster's inspection of the McMahon home, a steady procession of cars drove slowly past, most with children in them. They were there, or so it seemed, not out of morbid curiosity (whatever that really is) but to show youngsters the limitless viciousness of fire.

Free "Pre-Fire Insurance"

As the article on this page states, Princeton's Fire Department offers an unusual service to the community through its free inspection of any home in the Borough or Township. It also will advise home owners on suitable home fire alarm systems.

All those wishing to take advantage of this no-cost "pre-fire insurance" can make arrangements by telephoning Fire Chief Robert F. Mooney at the Borough Administrator's office from 9 to 5 Monday through Friday. The number is WA 4-3119.

Home Fire Alarms. Many people think that a dog in the house is equivalent to a good fire alarm system. This is sadly untrue. All three homes where there have recently been fires had a pet dog — and all three pets died in the fire. The tragedy points up the inadequacy.

A good home fire alarm system, says Chief Mooney can be installed for something less than $100. On the other hand an inadequate system may cost many times that.

Both Chief Mooney and Captain Dempster urge anyone who wishes to install a home alarm device to consult first with the fire department and, most especially, not to buy any such system from a door-to-door or telephone salesman. Captain Dempster stresses this advice with: "Before the McMahon fire was out a salesman appeared in the neighborhood trying to take advantage of the situation. I told him to get out, or I'd take him to court."

Pre-Fire Insurance. Presumably every home owner has fire insurance. There is, however, a unique and free "pre-fire insurance" offered by Princeton's fire department — a careful inspection of any home upon request of the owner. It's an incalculably valuable service which, unfortunately, far too few Princetonians ask for.

On Sunday, at the request of TOWN TOPICS, two firemen made an inspection of an "average" Princeton home. They found more than 20 sources of fire danger in that one house, all of them easily correctable.

These sources included flammable material in the garage, including gasoline, oil, old furniture and bedding and incorrectly stacked fireplace wood; an open electrical connection, ignitable objects and inadequate sheet rock insulation in the furnace room ("the most dangerous area in the house"); insufficient insulation between the furnace outlet pipe and the chimney.

Others were: inadequate fireplace screen, a number of extension wires from wall outlets to lamps running along the floor and under rugs ("cords get scuffed and worn unless correctly mounted along the baseboards"); several exclusion plugs in single plug outlets ("probably the cause of more fires than any other owner-installed device"); an open unused wall ping just above the dishwasher; a dangerously worn toaster cord; a highly ignitable bed of lint at the base of the electric clothes dryer; a worn, dust-clogged freezer motor.

All of these fire hazards are now being corrected in this one home. But how many hundreds of others exist in the many Princeton homes where firemen have not been asked to make such an inspection? Clearly, the best way to find out is to ask for such a survey of your property — and then eliminate the dangers immediately.

In that way, and by taking the other safety measures, you can virtually rid your home of the evil threat of fire. How could you be satisfied with less?

Memorial for the McMahons

The memory of the four McMahon children — Kevin 10, Brian 9, Eileen 8, and Kathleen 6 — who died January 6 in a tragic fire in their home — will not be forgotten.

A McMahon Memorial Committee has been formed with the endorsement of the Benjamin Franklin School Parent-Teacher executive board to provide a suitable memorial. All four McMahon children attended the Franklin school in Lawrence Township.

The committee felt that the memorial should be permanent, and should reflect the family's deep interest in education in the community. As a result, and in keeping with the family's love of nature — four trees will be purchased and planted on the school grounds, one in memory of each child.

Those wishing to make a donation may mail it to the Benjamin Franklin School. Checks should be made payable to the McMahon Memorial.

SNOW IS FUN? Sure, when you're young in heart and spirit. Of course, if you've had to abandon your car in the middle of a parking lot, you may find other definitions of "fun." Peter Waaben, 5, and his brother Charles, 4, were throwing handfuls of snow into the air and pretending to make a blizzard but they stopped for a moment out of kindness to the photographer. The abandoned cars were in the middle of the municipal lot at the corner of Mercer and University. (Staff Photos)

TOPICS Of the Town

"A FINE STORM!"

(Who Said That?) It snowed Monday.

Depending on where you stood — on a section of Valley Road, your feet firmly planted on windswept blacktop, or on Herrontown Road where drifts were higher than a truck cab — the snow was either nothing at all, or ten feet deep.

"It was a fine storm, a splendid storm!" exulted David Ludlum, Princeton weatherman. "It had everything. It had low temperatures, heavy snow and gale winds. It was a true 'Eastern blizzard.'"

While Mr. Ludlum rubbed his hands — with delight, not cold — Princeton exfoliated itself from the drifts, brushed the dry snow off, counted the cars towed away, stayed home from work and entertained friends with "you should have seen how bad it was out here."

So Big. For statisticians, Mr. Ludlum measured 12 undrifted inches maximum, 10 inches minimum in Princeton. (U.S. weathermen in Trenton counted nine.) The Ludlum thermometer on Riverside Drive sank to a low of six at 7 a.m. Tuesday. Winds were 30-35 m.p.h., with gusts of 40-45. (A "gale" is 38 m.p.h.)

The anemometer is on top of the Ludlum's Riverside Drive garage, a garage incidentally, from which the snow was conveniently blown away. It pays to be a weatherman.

Mr. Ludlum says scientifically what most Princeton residents knew already in the marrow of their bones: It seemed colder because of the wind.

Here She Comes! The storm was no particular surprise. Municipal officials and school personnel knew it was on the way Sunday afternoon. Borough engineer Thomas Cawley warmed up the snow-removal crews at 1 a.m. Monday.

Engineers Frank Quimby in the Township sent out the alert at 5 a.m. The Borough subscribes to a private weather service and Township departments frequently telephone across the line to ask "What's up?"

Well before dawn on Monday, the Township crews were out: 20 men in five trucks, a grader, a front-end loader and a jeep. It was close to 24 hours later before any of them were able to quit and get some sleep. Up The Great Road they went, past "Tenacre" on the big, high curve; sweeping Harrison Street half a dozen times to keep ahead of the gale, bested by the snow and wind time and again on Cherry Valley, hampered on Quaker Bridge by drifts and by cars stuck in the snow. By 9:45 Monday night, Princeton Pike was impassible. And sometime Monday, a snow plow got stuck in the snow on Route 206.

Homeowners were patient and good-humored, and few of them called in to ask "Why haven't you plowed my street?"

Occasionally, in the past, Township Committee has considered a ban on all-night parking so that snow plows can maneuver more easily on the streets, and Mr. Quimby says that parked cars did indeed hamper the operations.

"We had to pick and choose the streets, depending on how many cars were parked," he reported, "and then we'd have to go back later and see whether the street was empty enough to plow."

Borough Busy, Too. Removing the snow from parking lots was the Borough's chief occupation. State Highway crews were responsible for Nassau Street — the Borough took a swipe here and there, just to touch up the corners — but parking lots were strictly a municipal problem.

Out of 188 parking slots in the Witherspoon lot, 20-25 are taken up by piles of snow. And no penny in the meter, either. Other snow-piles are being taken by truck to Lake Carnegie and dumped.

In the Borough, three extra trucks and 15 extra men were on duty. (All of the Township's 20 were regulars.) Neither Borough nor Township rented any equipment — as in the past — and both engineers report equipment in fairly good shape. It was a light snow and dry, easy and feathery to handle, if you weren't on the end of a snow-shovel.

Borough householders were not so patient as those in the Township. Complaints came in to Borough switchboards about snowplows which were blocking off driveways with walls of plowed snow. "The general welfare of the public is our first thought," replied Administrator Robert Mooney, which means clear streets come first.

Incidentally, firehouses are actually the first places cleared. Sixteen firemen stood guard in Princeton's three firehouses from 6 p.m. Monday to 7 a.m. Tuesday. The snow was so soft that firemen could easily have dug through to a hydrant, in case of fire, said Fire Chief Robert Mooney.

More than 50 cars were towed away during the night from all over town by Borough police. Many of them were on University Place and in the plaza near the Pennsylvania Railroad station, and this caused grumbling among commuters who felt that they were being singled out for special treatment.

The Chief SAYS! Police Chief Peter J. McCrohan says that good excuses always abound: "My car died on me," "I'm too old to shovel snow," but Borough police are inexorable. Chief McCrohan was himself a shoveler when he got home, working to clear his own driveway so that he could get his car off the street.

"Neighbors called up to ask if they could leave their cars on the street all night," he said, "and I told them to do the same as I was doing."

The broadest area of no complaint was the school population. Sunday afternoon, John McKenna, superintendent of Township schools, and Chester Stroup, superintendent of Borough schools, were given a snow alert from the office of Jack Twitchell, Mercer County Superintendent of Schools.

Before daylight Monday, both superintendents were in action, conferring by phone, with each other, with Township police, with superintendents in other districts, with Mr. Cawley and his private weather forecaster.

Around 5 a.m., things didn't weather reports were ominous seem too bad, actually, but Together, Dr. Stroup and Dr. McKenna decided it was safer to close in the expectation of a severe storm by noon Monday, than to leave the schools open and face the possibility of sending children home at the height of a howling blizzard

"No School". Police, station WHWH, school principals, superintendents of sending districts were notified, and a "telephone tree" — a kind of relay to notify all staff members of the closing — began to grow in each of the two districts.

Dr. Stroup trudged through the snow to the high school where he set up the two automatic answering devices, put on the recorded message, and hooked them up to the switch board

---

Late Monday, the same routine was repeated. The Township, heavily dependent on buses, had to be sure that the wind wouldn't send drifts over the plowed roads by 7 a.m. Tuesday.

There was no assurance of this, and so the schools were closed for a second day. There was also, of course, the problem of getting teachers in from peripheral areas.

"Coming, Dear!" A few other people had their troubles too, getting in from peripheral areas. "I was lucky," said one commuter on the Pennsylvania from New York. "It took me only five hours to get home Monday night."

He left New York at 4 p.m., had to change trains at Newark at 5:30 because the New York train gave up, and from 5:30 on, just sat and waited until he was finally delivered to Princeton.

In town, offices sent their personnel home early and stores closed down in mid-afternoon, except those selling snow-shovels and sandwiches to take out.

The engineering departments of Borough and Township and the hard-working road crews are indeed due a vote of thanks as big as the drifts they plowed away. It took less time to clear the streets than it did for the storm to clog them, which is a real triumph of man over nature.

Clear weather is the forecast for the next few days, and the temperature will rise somewhat from the low readings not too far from zero. The white stuff, however, is here to stay for quite a while: thermometer readings will below normal are forecast through mid February.

News Of The THEATRES

MANAGER NAMED

To Succeed Mrs. McAneny. Monte Frierson has been appointed to the post of General Manager, to succeed Mrs. Marguerite McAneny at McCarter Theatre.

Experienced in many aspects of the theatre from public relations to active production, Mr. Frierson has been business manager of several organizations, including the American Shakespeare Festival, the Lambertville Music Circus and the Westport Country Playhouse.

In addition, Mr. Frierson has been east-coast manager for the Canadian Players Ltd., manager of the Celebrity Concert Series for the University of Oklahoma and assistant to the president of The Theatre Wing. He has managed national and international concert and lecture tours for many artists and speakers.

ON FILM

Regulars, Bonuses. "I Vitelloni," from the hand of the Italian director Federico Fellini will be shown in McCarter Theatre Tuesday as the next offering in the Classic Film Series.

Initially released in 1956, "I Vitelloni" describes the young men of modern Italy, whose useless lives are spent in pursuit of physical pleasure and money." The film won the Grand Prize at the Venice Film Festival.

Next Friday, January 24, McCarter will close its "January Jubilee" with "A Tremendously Incongruous Double Feature," pairing off "Little Caesar," the Edward G. Robinson classic of the '30's, with "The Golden Age of Comedy," featuring Harry Langdon, Ben Turpin, Will Rogers, Laurel and Hardy and the Keystone Kops.

PRINCE AND PLAYHOUSE

The Cardinal (now showing) is the story, based on Henry Morton Robinson's best-selling novel, of a young lad from Boston who advances through priesthood to prince of the Roman Catholic Church. It's a big movie about a big subject which will draw big crowds.

Pictorially the film is frequently stunning, with vast, colorful scenes reaching from New England to Rome, Vienna, Georgia and points in between. Dramatically it would seem to be something of a mixed blessing — albeit a lengthy one.

Opinions on it run to extremes. "Restrained and dignified, 'The Cardinal' is both entertaining and informative, educational and inspiring," is the opinion of Richard Cardinal Cushing. "A soap opera that cloaks its banality, tastelessness and pretension in topicality and religiosity," says Judith Crist of the New York Herald Tribune.

Tom Tryon is "lithe and beatific" as Father Stephen Fermoyle, the priest who becomes cardinal, according to "Time." He has "the physical fluidity and spiritual grace of a cigar-store Indian," sneers Miss Crist.

Clearly the only way to decide what you think about "The Cardinal" is to go see it for yourself. It will take you just five minutes less than three hours.

GARDEN

Love on a Pillow (through Tuesday) is a re-exposure to Princeton audiences, or at least to the male segment thereof, of the much-exposed Brigitte Bardot. It's another bare-skin saga of the French divesteuse (or whatever the word might be for a Gallic gal whose chief dramatic talent consists of slinking around in the buff whenever possible.)

For those who may have missed BB's earlier prancings, her director and first husband, Roger Vadim, has put together a film which might as suitably been named "The Best of Bardot, or Down Mammary Lane." This he, as the Walt Disney of the skin-trade, has done using both wide-screen and full color for emphasis.

The story is unimportant. It's merely a vehicle for presenting Playmate-of-the-Month maximum camera studies of BB in minimum costume. In fact, in one memorable scene he has her tripping about "lonte nne" (that's nekkid as a jay-bird, son.)

Much of the action involves horizontal histrionics with Robert Hossein, whom she befriends in something more than a palsy-walsy way. For the Garden, "Pillow" should be a boom-with-bust business.

WITHOUT MARGUERITE? It's almost unthinkable, but that's the way it will have to be at McCarter Theatre from now on, because Mrs. Herbert McAneny (see this week's cover) has resigned from the Theatre to devote her full time to the University's Theatre Collection. She is shown here with part of the Collection's display commemorating Triangle Club's 75th anniversary. (Staff Photo)

SUCCESSOR: Monte Frierson is Mrs. Marguerite McAneny's replacement as general manager at McCarter Theatre.

GOING BACK in Town Topics

FIVE YEARS AGO

January 15, 1959. At least one individual showed that he liked the financial arrangements that could be negotiated at a finance company in the Princeton Shopping Center. He was a young bandit, known only as "the loan ranger," who successfully had held up the office for the second time in two weeks.

Having latched on to $329 in funds at gun-point on December 30, 1958, he had returned on January 12th and had got $212, the second time without using his revolver as inducement. Despite quick police response to the alarm, he had again made a successful exit from the area.

Indication of the wide disparity in tastes of Princeton movie-goers was evident in answers to TOWN TOPICS' Question of the Week. Asked "What motion picture was your favorite in 1958," those answering all named different pictures they had seen during the preceding year, except for two doormen at the Playhouse. Their choice "Houseboat."

Other favorites ranged from the lusty "The Brothers Karamazov" through the gusty "Auntie Mame." But one thing was clear: movie business in Princeton was better than ever. According to Playhouse Manager Richard W. Knight, "the transition weeks from 1958 to 1959 represented the best holiday period in years."

A new restaurant, "The Cultured Chicken," was about to be hatched on Witherspoon Street. Apparently the chicken was too cultured to stand the hectic life of nourishing Princeton's eaters-out, however, because the location soon changed its character from poultry spot to parking lot.

TEN YEARS AGO

January 14, 1954. The winter weather in Princeton up to almost the middle of January in 1954 had been unusually warm. December 1953 had been, in fact, the warmest for that month in over 20 years.

Then, on Monday of the second week in January, both temperature and snow fell and Florida train and plane reservations rose concurrently. For the first time in five years, "real" winter had hit Princeton, with the mercury dropping to zero and road-clogging, school-closing snow piling up to over eight inches.

The constant pilgrimage to Princeton by the world's great was to be marked by a visit from President Celal Bayar of Turkey. President Bayar and his wife were to make Princeton town and gown the first stop on a three-week nation-wide tour.

An unusual new plan had just been started at the Public Library in January 1954. More than 30 reproductions of famous paintings had been made available for rent at a fee of $1 per picture for a three-month period.

Paintings by Picasso, Utrillo, Cezanne, Matisse and Gauguin were among those available. Norman Rockwell and Rosa Bonheur and the like were happily not included.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

January 13, 1949. The weather in Princeton was making news in January 1949 just as it would be five years later (or almost any January, for that matter). But in 1949 it was rain and not snow.

Over three inches of rain had fallen in less than 36 hours, giving the town an uncomfortably close resemblance to Venice. If it had been snow, according to TOWN TOPICS' advisory weatherman, it would have piled up to a depth of 32.8 inches, so rain was obviously the lesser of the two precipitory evils.

Princeton's first parking meters were being made ready for Nassau and Witherspoon Streets. The 235 car-watchers were going to cost about $16,000 to install, were expected to bring in some $10,000 a year in revenue. March 1, 1949 was the date set for their initial operation.

One TOWN TOPICS advertiser found himself in the pleasant position of having to place a classified to offset one which had appeared in the previous issue in January 1949. The second ad read: "THE FIVE-ROOM APARTMENT advertised last week has been rented to one of the 22 applicants. The landlord regrets his obvious inability to accommodate the others but wishes to express his appreciation for their replies to his advertisement."

OTHER PAPERS in Princeton will run your classified advertising for half-price, or free of charge if your for sale ads don't sell. In TOWN TOPICS, you'll find more ads and better results.

IT'S NEW To Us

WHAT'S TO AUCTION?

It's Smith Time. Once again the Smith Club raises the gavel for its January auction, and bargain hunters from miles around will converge to bid and lose and bid and win. The Auction will be held next Saturday, January 25, from 10 a.m. in the gymnasium at Miss Fine's.

We had a preview the other day of some auction offerings, and we'll describe them for you in a minute. Let us say first, however, that housewives ferreting in the attic and husbands clearing the basement to make room for Christmas tools, will contribute to the auction right until the last minute, and the only way you can find out about everything is to attend the auction yourself.

A tremendous Turkish-style rug, so big and so weighty that it has never even been unfolded, thought to approximate 12 by 14 feet, is ready for unveiling by the winning bidder. We saw a sizeable corner of it, and we found it still soft of pile and rich in color. (You can obviously see all of it before you bid — it's just that we came early.)

Then — a credenza. It's mahogany, with three shelves on either side of a center chest of four drawers. The top, fourth drawer opens into a writing desk with pigeon-holes and its own little desk drawers. Around the back of the credenza is a small, delicate brass gallery.

One of the most fascinating pieces is an Empire table, an imperious 37 inches tall, 39 inches long and 18 inches deep, with a full, square mirror underneath that you can use to find out whether your stockings are straight.

The legs are massive — (the table legs, not yours) — with brass toppings and brass claw feet. Don't know where you'd put the table, but if your entrance hall is Empire enough, this is for you.

Smaller hallways will settle for a narrow oak table no deeper than eight inches, but a good 40 inches long. Legs are slim, but carved in pure oaken style. A masculine Jacobean desk (Smith products tend to the massive this year) would be a fine surprise present for Daddy.

If you need a second, or third television set, Smith can supply you with an RCA that works — really it does. Screen is about 17 inches, so far as we can tell. There's another electrical appliance around here somewhere, too — ah, yes. An electric broiler which also is in working order, and a GE cannister vacuum with all its component parts.

On the White Elephant side, Smith has a charming little silver inkstand with two wells and a small tray, a collection of lace doilies and a lace tablecloth and a whole box full of handbags (Any little girls want to play dress up?)

SLEEK . . . SCANDINAVIAN

At Viking. The trouble is, no color. Black and white photography (see above) misses entirely the dramatic color and grain of the two new rosewood pieces recently arrived at Viking Furniture. The buffet, 88½ inches long, and its oblong refectory table, 67 by 36, command attention, no question about it.

Two-thirds of the buffet closes off with tambour doors so adroitly assembled that you can't tell they are tambour unless you kneel down and peer at them closely. Inside, the buffet is oak. Each of the four drawers (made with horizontal graining to contrast with the vertical grain of the doors) is lined for silverware.

VIKING AND CHEST: Because rosewood is a hard wood, it takes an oil finish in quite a different way from, let's say, teak. The soft gleaming shine on this rosewood buffet is an example. Marty Bratman, owner of Viking Furniture, displays the full 88 inches of this dramatic piece of furniture.

The table is a four-square design with legs at the farthest possible point on the corners so that guests have no knee problems. With two leaves, it extends to 113 inches. The chairs are slim and sculptured, deceptively delicate with their open, non-stretcher construction, but built for strength.

(Incidentally, the Scandinavian craftsman gives these dimensions in centimeters — the translations are Viking's)

Departing from Scandinavia for a moment, Viking unveils the domestic "Directional" line with its understated combinations of walnut, rosewood and butternut.

The "Knickerbocker Liquor Locker" is a tall chest made to be set on a table or buffet. Its shelves, with half-moon cut outs, have been arranged so cannily that they will hold both glassware and bottles in considerable quantity.

Matching — but upstairs in the bedroom — Directional's line presents, of all things, a man's chifferobe. It's 66 inches tall and 40 inches wide with two deep drawers at the bottom and double hinged doors that fold back to reveal more shirts than you know you had, plus hats, stacks of sweaters, socks, underwear and old Pennsylvania time-tables. Milo Baughman is the designer.

A square, revolving bookcase is a modern variation of a pleasant 19th-century theme. You supply the matching pipe and slippers.

Another piece which might appeal to Daddy is the teak bridge table with green felt inset in the top. But is it only a bridge table? If you think so, you don't know Scandinavian ingenuity. The green felt top flips upside down and its teak underside becomes the top of a teak table. Then two leaves appear magically at each side, and you have an oblong teak dining-table, innocent of the game-room.

Last time we went to Viking, we described for you the hand-made Japanese wool rugs the "Joto" group. We saw only pictures at that time, and we thought we'd tell you that rug samples themselves are now in stock so that you can feel and examine these unusual pieces and see the richness of color and weave.

MUSIC In Princeton

FROM DIZZY TO M.J.Q.

Route of Jazz Four. All four members of the Modern Jazz Quartet are alumni of the Dizzy Gillespie Orchestra. And in addition to being a duespaying alumnus of that group, John Lewis holds bachelors' and master's degrees from the Manhattan School of Music.

Milt Jackson, Vibraharpist for the quartet, won first place as Vibraharpist in every major poll from 1956 to 1960, including those conducted by Down Beat, Metronome and Playboy.

Lewis, Jackson and their colleagues will come to McCarter Theatre Friday at 8:30 to take part in the theatre's "January Jubilee," a vamp-till-ready operation designed to keep the theatre on its toes until Shakespeare opens in February.

"The Quartet plays with the lithe, pulsing grace that is the very essence of Jazz," wrote John Wilson of the New York "Times" when the M.J.Q. played Philharmonic Hall in December.

"Unique creativity," is the phrase used by another critic to describe the quartet's contribution to jazz since the four first gathered together, back in 1952.

M.J.Q. MAN: John Lewis is music director of the Modern Jazz Quartet, due in McCarter this Friday at 8:30

. . . IN REHEARSAL

Princeton Chamber Singers. One of the few professional choral groups specializing in contemporary music, The Princeton Chamber Singers received critical applause when they performed in Town Hall two seasons ago.

Now in rehearsal again, the Singers are preparing two major works for performance this May in a special concert at The New School in New York. The group sings under the direction of Thomas Hilbish.

The compositions in rehearsal are Seymour Schiffrin's "Odes of Shang" for mixed voices, piano and percussion to the text of Ezra Pound, and a work by Kenneth Gaburo for mixed voices and tape recorder. Mr. Gaburo has not yet titled his composition. It was commissioned for the Chamber Singers by the Fromm Music Foundation.

Although the Chamber Singers include among their number several graduate students and housewives, each singer is a skilled musician far beyond the amateur status. Princeton music lovers are familiar with the names of Thelma Young, Woodward Waesche and Rachel Armstrong, all of whom are on the roster of Chamber Singers.

In 1962, the singers presented Salvatore Martirano's "O,O, O,O That Shakespeherian Rag," later recorded by Composers Recordings, Inc. Of the performance, Eric Salzman wrote in the New York "Times:" "Mr. Hilbish and his singers achieved, or came remarkably close to achieving, the unbelieveable!"

QUARTET COMING

Hungarians En Route. Mozart, Beethoven and Bartok are the composers who will be represented when the Hungarian Quartet comes to McCarter Theatre for the third offering in Series II of the Princeton University Concerts.

The concert will be held on Monday at 8:30. Tickets are on sale at the University Store and will be available at the box office from 7:30 Monday night.

For their Princeton program, the quartet has chosen Mozart's Quartet in C major, K 465 ("Dissonance"); Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Opus 59, No. 2 and Bartok's Quartet, from 1923.

Formed in Budapest in 1935, the Hungarian Quartet made its first tour of the United States in 1948 and adopted this country as its home two years later. The four musicians, however, have performed throughout the entire world. In 1961-62, they spent the whole season in Europe, and a year later they lived for the academic year in Boulder, Colo., as "Visiting String Quartet" at the University of Colorado.

Zoltan Szekely, first violin was a close friend of Bela Bartok and played many recitals with the composer. Michael Kuttner, second violin, spent several years in Princeton as a member of the faculty of Westminster Choir College. He joined the quartet after World War II.

Denes Koromzay, violist, was assistant concertmaster of the Budapest Concert Orchestra before joining the Hungarian Quartet. Gabriel Magyar, cellist, was a leading young virtuoso in Hungary before the war.

A SONG TO SING, O!

Savoyards in Tune. Melodies from "Yeoman of the Guard," "Iolanthe," "Mikado," "H.M.S. Pinafore" — you fill in the rest — will be heard in delightful profusion this Thursday when the Savoyards of Princeton present the "Evening with Gilbert and Sullivan" which they had to cancel because of President Kennedy's death.

The affair will begin at 8:30, and will be held in 10 McCosh on the University campus. Eight veterans of former Savoyard productions will sing, and A. Munro Wade will provide the spoken word.

TWO AT MISS FINE'S

Violin, Piano. Louise Strunsky, pianist, and Joseph Kovacs, violinist, will give a recital at Miss Fine's School this Friday noon.

Friends of Mrs. Strunsky and Mr. Kovacs, as well as friends of music in general, are invited to attend.

STRINGS TO PLAY

For Music Club. Joseph Kovacs, violinist, and David Wells, cellist, will perform for members of the Princeton Music Club when the group meets next Wednesday at 8:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Scheide, 133 Library Place.

Unaccompanied pieces by Bach, Bartok and Cone will be on the program. Mrs. W. Donald Rugg and Mrs. Raymond Harper will be the assisting hostesses.

WRINKLES
by Marie Davant

New York — Chemical science has found a white substance made with quicksilver that works wonders on wrinkled, roughened face and hands. Use it one time and it is entirely possible you will see improvement next morning. In a few days dry-skin wrinkles start to vanish. Many of the small ones around the eyes and mouth have already disappeared. But that is not all! "Old-Age" (weathered) brown spots on hands and arms — brown "age" darkness on surface of face and neck fades away! Rich oils lubricate pores so blackheads can slip out without squeezing. Surface pimples and blemishes and scars, outwardly caused, dry up or become less noticeable! But don't take my word for it. Make a 6-day test without risking one penny. Just get a jar of Peacock's Imperial Creme at your favorite department or drug store. Use this thrilling cream for 6 days—and if you are not delighted with results, full price will be refunded. No questions asked. Peacock's Imperial Creme can work wonders for wrinkles, lines, brown spots and other weathered blemishes. You may obtain Imperial Creme for $2.00 plus tax from Marsh & Co., 30 Nassau. Clip this out.

It's New To Us

them at Wallpapers, the shop on Nassau off Charlton.

Thumbing through a book of vinyl wall coverings — "paper" is such a grubby old word — we found: woodgrain textures as numerous as the forest itself, Mylars in such white-tie glitter as "dice Copper" and "crush gold," the most realistic hemp this side of a shipyard; marble; monk's cloth in color, color, color; grass, silk that looks sunple, but is obviously as tough as hide.

And . . . patent finishes in all colors, leather, pillow ticking . . . any other ideas? Speaking of ideas, if you are baffled by a confrontation with Mylar vinyl, Wallpapers suggests a call to Cay Mohrman, Princeton's ubiquitous and imaginative decorator, who works through the Wallpapers' shop.

Now apart from vinyl, there are good old standard wall papers, like the ones in William J. Galligan's two books, each with Colonial ancestry (although you'd be surprised how many so-called traditional papers are at home with contemporary furnishings).

Galligan uses museum sources, and derives his designs from Oriental fabrics brought back by clipper-ship captains, Williamsburg damasks, medallion quilts and the like.

"Windsor Rose," in a Galligan book, is a wool block print, strong as a farm girl, with six-petalled flowers in straight rows of bright red, bright blue or bright pumpkin. As different as half a world away is "Scheherezade," a Persian print is greyed greens and beige; dull mustard and about a dozen other pairings of color.

Outside the Galligan group, but inside on the wall, we find "L" album de Jouets," which is a solemn grouping of antique toys, like a Harlequin marionette, three old dolls on pedestals, a mechanical acrobat and a toy horse and carriage.

Sudden Shower?

The bathroom is the newest room in the house at Wallpapers: the shop has only been concerned with hot and cold since just before Christmas. But look what's in stock!

We like the homespun shower curtain in deep gold, brown, red and turquoise, a startling fabric to find looped around a tub. It is standard homespun, too, not plastic. You hue it, of course, with a plastic liner to protect the fabric and keep water from seeping through.

Another shower curtain is frankly plastic, coyly pink with eyelet embroidery. Most spectacular is a flame-orange-red curtain in rough-textured cotton: a dazzler if you have a white bathroom you want to dramatize. If you are endowed with a bathroom which never sees a sodden towel, a misplaced sneaker or a plastic sailboat, why not the gold watered silk?

It was convenient, having the schools closed, because it freed all those eager boys for snow-shovel jobs, and it seemed, during the day on Monday and Tuesday, that every boy in Borough and Township was out shoveling snow.

But the girls worked, too. One housewife took her shovel, bit right into the wind and started to work on her own long driveway. Half way through, she turned around to catch her breath, and found that the wind had blown all the snow right back again. Her comment is not recorded.

Hand shoveling didn't always work, of course. On Van Dyke Road Tuesday morning, householders were standing in line in the snowy street waiting to sign up a driveway plow which was happily scooping up first one driveway and then another.

It was a lucky storm. Business went on as usual at Princeton Hospital, with only a normal flow of accidents into the dispensary. Four babies were born during the storm, all of them boys, which may be a commentary on the natural ruggedness of the human male. The hospital was staffed around the clock, of course.

Jamie Laredo, concert violinist, was due to appear Monday night on the McCarter stage and McCarter was still looking for him as late as 7 p.m. He made a valiant try but never got farther than Newark. The cancelled recital will probably be held in April.

To Be Continued. Getting back to Mr. Ludlum, whom we left purring happily at his anemometer, it was an "eastern blizzard." A "western blizzard," says Mr. Ludlum, is characterized by lower temperatures and more snow picked up by the wind from the ground.

The word "blizzard," Mr. Ludlum tells us, is recent, meteorologically speaking. It used to be a military term, referring to a volley of shots, but in March, 1870 somewhere in Iowa, an inventive soul used the word to describe a big, blowing snow, and by 1880, the word was in general use.

For future storms, Princeton has its own Meteorological Station — the one set up in the new Junior Museum in Borough Hall. It was supposed to begin operations on Monday, but things didn't work out that way, the weather was just too bad!

And about the future? Mr. Ludlum's forecast: "I expect winter to continue."

ONE-HOUR PARKING

Council to Consider Plan. The possibility of increasing all business-zone street parking meter times to one hour was up for discussion at Tuesday's meeting of Mayor and Council. But no ordinance to change the present regulations will be introduced, it was decided, until there has been an opportunity to sound out the opinion of businessmen and the Princeton Chamber of Commerce.

The subject came up with the reading of a letter from nine business leaders. The letter endorsed the idea of upping all business-district street meter limits from half an hour to an hour, but it urged against raising the hourly tab from 5 to 10 cents.

No action will be taken on a new ordinance until a reasonably united front can be established among all parties involved. Besides, it will cost about $19,000 to change the present meters, according to Mayor Patterson, so it's not a step to be taken hastily.

Council also took action on banning auto laundries (quick-tie car wash establishments) from Princeton Borough's business zone. It passed on first reading an amendment for that which was introduced by Councilman Alfred E. Sorenson.

The proposed amendment goes next to the planning board and, if approved there, will be brought before Council for a public hearing and final reading at its February 11th meeting. The amendment would not apply to garages and gas stations which also do car washing.

At Tuesday's meeting Mayor and Council also:

- Heard that Borough expenditures for 1963 had been about $46,000 less than had been anticipated.
- Received a letter from Attorney William C. Baggitt on behalf of Michael Tamasi Sr. asking for reimbursement of $1,300 which Mr. Thomas spent in 1958 in improvements on Borough property. Because there is no legal way in which Council can accomplish this, the request had to be denied.
- Congratulated new Borough Engineer Thomas J. Cawley and his entire department on their efficient handling of Monday's heavy snowfall.

- Accepted a petition from Eugene Maybury, 39 Humbert Street, asking that both Humbert and Greenview Streets be repaired and restricted to one-way traffic. The petition was referred to the public works and public safety committee.
- Heard from Councilman William H. Walker II that all 11 eligible patrolmen on the Borough police force (those with more than five years of service) were to take the examination for promotion to sergeant, for which one vacancy exists, and that there would be 33 applicants examined be-

TAX PICTURE UNFOLDS

School Budgets Announced. Taxpayers in Borough and Township saw the first piece of the 1964 financial picture this week when the two school boards announced their 1964-65 figures.

In the Borough, the proposed budget is $1,952,663.54, an increase of $93,333 over the current allotment.

In the Township, the new budget amounts to $2,105,361, which is about eight percent more than this year's.

Public hearing on the Borough budget will be held in the Board of Education office in the Princeton High School building on Tuesday, January 28 at 8 p.m. The Township, following a somewhat different procedure from the Borough, tentatively adopted the new budget last Thursday and scheduled a public hearing for Thursday, January 30, at 8 p.m. in Community Park School.

On February 11, Borough and Township voters will pass on both budgets and elect members to the two school boards. Civilian absentees should apply for a ballot by February 3.

Borough. No part of the Borough's increase is related to the new elementary school, said Graham Robrer, Board president, in outlining the new budget.

Most of the increase comes from implementing Step Two of the teachers' salary guide which was adopted last year by both Borough and Township systems. Sixty percent of that salary increase was included in the current budget and 40% has been assigned to the new budget.

"Both Boards felt that the salary adjustments were necessary in order to attract and retain the kind of teachers demanded by our community," Mr. Rohrer said.

The new budget provides for four new teachers. One of these is specially trained in remedial work. The other three will simply give the Borough enough manpower so that it can reduce class size.

Library services, materials and audio-visual aids will also be expanded under the new budget, and the school board has set aside enough money to continue the modernization program, started in the business education department. This will include renting a key punch machine for teaching purposes.

The Borough Board has also provided funds to finance its share of the Joint Study of Public Education in the Princeton Community, the study that is being made by both Borough and Township Boards along with the municipal, or "consolidation," study.

Township. The impact of the Township's budget depends on ratables. Dr. McKenna estimated on Thursday that the Township will gain $3½ million in ratables this year, and the school board hopes that the eight percent increase in its budget will be met by the increase in ratables.

Singed by last year's heated protests from taxpayers, the Township Board has been planning its budget presentation for almost a year.

The new budget, which represents the smallest increase in four years, has been thoroughly explored, not only by the Board itself but by the nine members of the Citizens Advisory Committee, appointed in September.

George Grace, finance chairman of the Township Board, has met twice with these men (James Fitzpatrick, William Sword, Lewis Kraft, Simeon Moss, Leighton Laughlin, James Parsons, Robert Sinkler, James Warren and Stanley Smoyer).

In the course of the two meetings, Mr. Grace has categorized each item in the budget and related it directly to school board policy. Class size, teacher's salaries, breadth of curriculum and population growth are the four elements of Board policy which Mr. Grace has used to measure each dollar in the new budget.

Following this line of reasoning Mr. Grace has pointed out to his Committee that "lopping off" isn't the way to change a budget. The only way to change, Mr. Grace has suggested, is to make basic shifts in basic policies.

All nine of the Committeemen made valuable contributions Mr. Grace said, particularly about presentation of the budget. Mr. Grace submitted to the group an outline of the brochure that will be delivered next week to Township residents, the men reviewed it in detail and suggested varying emphases for different parts of the budget.

Besides meeting with his Committee and with the Board — Mr. Grace went over the new budget with the Board in the same detailed manner — the finance chairman, together with Richard Pearson, Board chairman, and John McKenna, superintendent of schools, appeared before the PTAs of four Township schools. (The fifth appearance, at Johnson Park, is scheduled for this Thursday night.)

Bond Issue Planned

The issuance of Borough school bonds will be authorized at a special public meeting this Thursday by the Board of Education. The session is called for 8 p.m. in the board rooms at the high school.

Endorsed last fall in a public referendum, the bonds will help finance the planned elementary school on Walnut Lane. Financial matters in conjunction with the sale of bonds will also be discussed at the meeting.

At these PTA meetings, Board members discussed the relation between budget and curriculum and invited comments from the floor. (The school complement changed slightly from meeting to meeting, but usually it was the three men named above.)

They found, in many cases, that parents were not so much interested in trimming a budget as in broadening and deepening the academic program. One parent might suggest that the remedial reading program be enlarged, for example, and another might ask for a richer library offering.

When the brochure is released and the detailed budget is in full view, Township residents will know whether their suggestions have been incorporated into the school's program.

MAN KILLED IN FIRE

Trapped in Hopewell Home. Fred H. Noll, 75, retired railroad station agent, died when fire swept through his home at 23 Center Street in Hopewell early Sunday morning. Thomas Cooper of the Hopewell Fire Company carried Mr. Noll out of the burning building and attempted to revive him, but the victim was pronounced dead on arrival at Princeton Hospital at 1 a.m.

Dr. Matthew R. Lapin, deputy county physician, said that Mr. Noll died of smoke inhalation. He said that Mr. Noll had sustained some burns but that they were not enough to be a cause of death.

The fire apparently started when a sweater, left on a room heater to dry, ignited, according to Chief Albert Rathousky of the Hopewell Fire Company and County Fire Marshal John T. Dempster. Police Chief Thomas F. Fillebrown said that Mr. Noll had fought the blaze briefly and was trying to get out when he was overcome.

Mr. Noll was found on the floor of a room adjacent to the living room of his two-story, six-room home. A neighbor, Donald M. Allen, 9 Center Street, reported the fire, which gutted the interior of the house and did more than $5,000 damage.

Mr. Noll shared the home with his brother and sole survivor, Albert Noll, 64, a Reading Company clerk at Manville. The brother was not at home at the time of the blaze and did not learn of the tragedy until 9 a.m. Sunday.

According to Hopewell fire officials, it was the first fatal fire in Hopewell in 12 years.

PANEL ON ALCOHOLISM

At "Y" Luncheon Next Week. "Alcoholism is a major health problem and therefore a public responsibility. We are going to discuss the need for developing a consultation service here in Princeton — also how to bring about wider understanding and acceptance of the true nature of alcoholism so that problem drinkers will be encouraged to seek help before they are forced to do so by an inescapable crisis."

This is the dual purpose of a luncheon and panel discussion on "Community Methods for Reaching the Problem Drinker" which will be held on Wednesday at 12:30 at the Princeton YM-YWCA. The meeting will be sponsored by the health committee of the Council of Community Services.

William Ferguson of the National Council on Alcoholism will be the moderator, and panel members will include Dr. Selden D. Bacon, director, Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies; Charles Jackson, author of "The Lost Weekend," the Rev. Father Frederick Lawrence, and Mrs. Marjorie Buchanan, director, Alcoholism Treatment Center, Donnelly Memorial Hospital.

Tickets are $1.50. They can be reserved through this Thursday by telephoning WA 4-5882 or they can be purchased at the "Y" on Wednesday before the meeting.

TICKETS, PLEASE?

Sorry . . . Before Monday's storm actually began, Educational Testing Service had its own storm Friday night and Saturday morning.

The flood of holiday mail in post-offices around the country apparently drowned more than a thousand tickets which were being sent by ETS to high school students taking the College Boards Saturday.

Early last week ETS switchboards began feeling the pressure of long-distance calls from anxious boys and girls who hadn't yet received admission tickets. By Friday, the jam was so thick that the Princeton telephone office checked in at ETS to see why the lines should be so continually "busy."

One enterprising Princeton business office, unable to get through, called ETS Bakers Basin Shipping Center on the correct assumption that the center had a line to the Rosedale offices.

A crew of ten worked until 11 p.m. Friday answering calls and another crew answered the telephones Saturday until 1 p.m.

At Princeton High School and many other centers, students were admitted without the ticket. Those who were turned away will have to turn up again in March.

NOBEL WINNER HONORED

At University Dinner. Dr. Eugene P. Wigner, a co-winner of the 1963 Nobel Prize in Physics, was honored at a dinner last week by President Robert F. Goheen and Princeton University's board of trustees. The dinner was held at the Princeton Inn.

Dr. Wagner, Princeton's Thomas D. Jones Professor of Mathematical Physics, recently returned from Sweden where he was given his half of the prize. He shared the award with Dr. Maria Goeppert-Mayer of the University of California and Dr. J. Hans D. Jensen of Heidelberg.

Harold H. Helm, chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees, presided at the Princeton dinner. In addition to Dr. Goheen and Prof. Wigner, others on the program were Prof. Walker Bleakney, chairman of the department of physics, and Dr. Frederick Seitz, president of the National Academy of Sciences.

Mr. Helm described Dr. Wigner as "probably the one person in the whole world who least wants to talk about Prof. Wigner." The Princeton physicist is the first member of the University faculty to receive the Nobel Prize while still actively teaching.

ACCIDENT REPORT

Mercer Bridge Hit. A bridge collision, an overturned car and a hit-and-run case are among the accidents listed on police dockets last week.

Early last week, Mrs. Dorothy A. Shevlin, 3d, of Hamburg, skidded into the side of Mercer Road Bridge, damaging the left side of her car. After some assistance from a wrecker crew, Mrs. Shevlin, who was uninjured, was able to proceed on her way. The mishap took place late in the evening.

At 4 a.m. Sunday, Richard Scott, 24, 139 Spruce Street, overturned his small foreign car on Quaker Road, slightly injuring himself and a passenger, Clarence DiDonato, 23, 27 Harris Road.

According to the information Mr. Scott gave the Township police, he was turning off Mercer Road onto Quaker when a car, approaching in the opposite direction, veered into his lane, forcing him to swerve to the left. This, he said, caused him to loose control and the car turned over. It was a total loss.

In the Borough, the entire left rear of a car owned by August J. Pierre Jr. of 76 Linden Lane, was damaged when it was hit at 5:40 Sunday morning by another car.

Witnesses told police that a green and white car struck the Pierre car, parked on Nassau near Charlton, forcing it over the curb and onto the property of St. Paul's Church, a distance of 75 feet. The entire front end of the green and white car was damaged and its driver was seen fleeing the scene on foot by Father Harry of St. Paul's.

A police check revealed that the green and white car, a 1956 Chevrolet, was owned by Luis Irizarry of Port Rearing.

Later, police from Carteret telephoned Borough police to report that Mr. Irizarry had reported his car stolen at 8 a.m., three hours after the accident in Princeton. Borough police are continuing the investigation.

GETTING TO THE TOP OF THINGS: To find out what had been uppermost in the minds of Richard DeSantis (left) and Gil Danaso the day they were asked that question, see below.

Question of the Week

Question: What has been uppermost in your mind today?

Where asked: Palmer Square.

Gil Danaso, Trenton, mason for Harold Houghton, builder: I was thinking about the report on smoking. It gave me a big scare. I don't think I'll cut them out altogether but I intend to cut down.

Richard De Santis, Trenton, mason for Harold Houghton, builder: Not coming to work this morning. (Monday, the day of the big snow.)

Olli Jussila, 22 Edgehill Street, visiting fellow from Finland: I have been thinking of a research plan. I have applied for a scholarship and in the application I have to present a research plan.

Howard Steckler, Philipsburg, truck driver for Kingston Trap Rock: a coffee break.

Norman Snyder, Levittown, truck driver for Kingston Trap Rock: The cold. It goes right through you.

Jean Bour, Butler Avenue, graduate student: My qualifying exam for a doctorate in French. It comes up the end of this month.

Paula Cantor, 243 Mercer Road, student, Miss Fine's School: Civil Rights — and winning a touch football game against the social service committee.

Elise Rosenhaupt, Mount Lucas Road, student, Miss Fine's School: Getting together a list of people to solicit for SNCC—Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

Susie Sichel, Armour Road, student, Miss Fine's School: Trenchmouth. I've been thinking about it because a friend of mine has it.

Mrs. E.C. Taylor, 288 Western Way, housewife: Panama and what's happpening there.

Betsy Fairlamb, Bedens Brook Road, Rider College freshman: My final exams. They're coming up next week and they're going to be hard!

Mrs. Irene Stanton, River Road, Titusville, sales: My future employment, since I'm starting a new job. I'm just wondering if I'll be able to fill the requirements and make a go of it. I'm a representative for Tele-Norm Corporation and working with Penn-Jersey Business Machines in Morrisville.

Mrs. Ferdinand White, Mercer Road, housewife: Arthritis.

Thomas Grant III, Blair Hall, University senior: My thesis: "The Sensualist Heroine in the 20th Century Novel." I'm having a little trouble getting material.

Mrs. Patrick Long, 43 Maple Street, housewife: Household chores. I've got an awful lot to do yet.

Ronald Gold, 11 Dickinson Street, graduate student, economics: I was just thinking about President Johnson's speech. I thought it was a very fine speech. To me, it should provide a very good understanding of the needs of the country for the coming year.

Miss Janet Geng, Franklin Park, employee, Home Furnishing Shop, Witherspoon Street. I guess getting out of work and going home. I have a big evening planned tonight.

Walter Bannard, Skillman, librarian: I suppose you might say my headache would be uppermost in my mind but I should say Johnson's State of the Union speech.

Mrs. Virginia Stann, 74 Spruce Street, registered nurse: Being off duty.

Miss Freda Milner, 36 Bank Street, free-lance artist. Poverty.

William Burgan, 12 Stockton Street, graduate student: Comparative weather across the country. I've been looking at the weather map in the Times and wondering whether there actually is much difference between the weather here and in Baltimore, where I'm from. Or in other places such as New York and California. I've been thinking about how much of a factor weather is in deciding where to live.

Phil Tower, Witherspoon Hall, University sophomore: Getting my history paper done. As a matter of fact, I haven't even started it yet.

Constantino Black, 45 Stanley Avenue, taxi driver: Going back to the Philippines for a visit. I left there in 1921 and the last time I was back was in 1955. I'd like to get back once more if I could because I have a lot of brothers living there. But it costs a lot of money: $1300 by plane.

Mrs. Thomas E. Shoemaker, 4 Greenholm, housewife: Mailing a package to a friend in Philadelphia who left a sweater at our house.

Dave Stewart, 231 Russell Road, and Bill Walstad, 286 Shady Brook Lane, eighth-graders at Valley Road School: Soliciting advertising for our school year book. We got the day off from school to do it.

Alan Reynolds, 44 Lower Harrison, mail carrier: How we are ever going to get caught up with the mail. We still have a great volume of mail go through here.

John Keefe, 32 E. Broad Street, Hopewell, Hun School student: I was thinking what I was going to get my younger brother for his birthday.

Charles Popper, Pine Hall, University freshman: Exams, I guess. They'll be coming up in a few weeks.

Walter Brooke, Lawrenceville Road, research department, Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation: The State of the Union Address by President Johnson.

YOUTH SETS RECORD

In World Service Sales. Roger Thompson, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Thompson, 219 Halsey Street, has sold $236 worth of YMCA World Service mints to set a new record in this annual World Service campaign conducted by the Y. He and other boys will be honored at a recognition dinner to be held Monday at 6:30 at the YMCA building on Avalon Place.

David N. Howell, North American fraternal secretary in Liberia, will address the boys and their parents. He will discuss the leadership training project that the Princeton and Mercer County YMCA's have sponsored.

Gerald J. Skibbins, chairman of the project, reported that the drive would continue until all the candy is sold. Last year, the boys, all volunteers, raised $1850. The money is used to train Y librarians and organize Y groups in Liberia.

TAP-IN FOR TWO: Bill Bradley drops in two of the 31 points he made against Yale, outjumping Don Taylor (24) and Lil captain Rick Kaminsky (25). Tigers' 74-60 triumph was their best over the Blue in Dillon Gym in three years.

SPORTS In Princeton

WHO'LL WIN ON ROAD?

Answer Is Key to Ivy Race. In the four way Ivy basketball race that figures to develop among Princeton, Cornell, Penn and Yale, the victor will very likely be the team that can win at least one of its games against the other three away from home. Ability to take two such contests should virtually guarantee a first place finish, although conceivably one that would involve a playoff such as the Princeton-Yale engagement at Fordham last March.

It is with this in mind that the Tigers head for Ithaca Friday, a court on which they lost a year ago 73-67 — to some extent because Captain Art Hyland was out of action with an ankle sprain. Big Barton Hall will be filled to its 8,000 capacity because the young Cornell team is rolling along on top of the heap with a faster start than had been anticipated for the sophomore dominated squad.

The Ithacans, 12-12 a year ago and fourth in the Ivy chase, have two things going for them — height and balance. Three of their starters (Steve Cram, Jim Magliocan, Martin Van Leeuwen) are 6-5 or better, and all five of their regulars, Captain Ray Ratkowski and Bob McCready are the other two — are averaging in double figures. Against Harvard last week, Cornell had six players who scored from 11 to 15 points.

It has, however, been a decade since the Red won an Ivy title — trimming Princeton in a playoff at the Palestra on a last-second field goal. Cornell teams have generally been front runners at the start, and then faded when they played at Princeton, New Haven and Philadelphia. They lost all three last winter, in addition, in dropping a one-point decision to the Elis at Ithaca.

Tigers Still a Young Team. It may be expecting too much of a still somewhat inexperienced Princeton team to win this road game, with a lineup that may not have a senior in it. Captain Bill Howard injured his knee again in the 74-60 triumph over Yale Saturday and his availability until after the upcoming exam break is in doubt.

The Tigers are, however, developing a degree of the balance they must have to repeat as champions, even with a player as incomparable as Bill Bradley. Both Don Dodenbach and Bob Haarlow were in double figures both nights against Brown and Yale, taking a tremendous amount of pressure off Bradley's shoulders.

Best example came Friday when Bradley was held to far and away his lowest output in a half since coming to Princeton — three points, after conceding on only one of six shots from the floor. But Rodenbach and Haarlow were already in double figures, and the Tigers were coasting along on a 37-24 lead.

Bradley regained his shooting eye quickly, added a highly welcome 21 points in the second half and the Tigers rolled to an easy 86-56 triumph. It was Bill van Breda Kolff's ability to withdraw his starters at will after the intermission that helped in the defeat Saturday night of Yale, which had gone down to the wire on its 70-69 overtime loss at the Palestra to Penn.

Yale Fails to Impress. Although they will still be a major factor in the race, with two of their three toughest road games behind them, the Elis showed a surprising number of weaknesses in losing to Penn and Princeton last weekend. At the Palestra, they made barely half their foul shots in a game decided by a single point and faded under pressure, losing a seven-point lead in the closing minutes of regulation time.

In Dillon Gym, the Elis' attack and their rebounding proved twin deficiencies; they hit only 30% from the floor and, in the final nine minutes of the first half, while Princeton was moving out to the 11-point lead it never relinquished.

ed, made only four field goals. Despite a height advantage, the losers were outrebounded, 50 to 44.

Zone Press Costly. Early in the game, Yale tactics of pressing Rodenbach and Uhle at center court resulted in three quick steals and an 11-5 Eli lead. But van Breda Kolff replaced Uhle with Don Roth, the Tigers' passing sharpened and Yale's zone was split with several sneaker layups that caused Coach Joe Vancisin to cancel the press forthwith.

Princeton erased its early deficit when it drew even at 19-all. The Tigers were tied once more at 23-all and then gradually took command, so much so that when they left the floor with a 43-32 half-time advantage, the second half was all but anticlimactic.

Bradley Was Brilliant. A series of spectacular assists credited to Bradley, whom the Elis could never contain, combined with his 15 points to break the game open. Haarlow was the recipient of most of his accurate passes, often converting for undefended layups.

Midway through the second half — in the space of four minutes and 48 seconds, Bradley hit on four field goals and four fouls to give the Tigers 12 consecutive points. In the course of that action, 6-5 Hank Bryant, assigned to guard him, fouled out 6-6 Dave Schumacher, who contributed a lone free toss to the Yale total, picked up four fouls in the first half in the rugged action beneath both baskets and was never much of a factor. Bradley finished with 31 to remain among the nation's leading point-makers.

Saturday night will see Princeton at Columbia, where sharpshooting Neil Farber (17.6 last season) is the principal threat. The Lions lack both polish and experience and are unlikely to raise much hob with the Tigers even in a league famed for its upsets.

Penn makes the same swing Princeton does in Ivy play this weekend, affording a look at its ability to win on the road. It could be that Cornell will stand 5-0 by Saturday night, the only unbeaten team in the league — but the only one with all its tough road games still ahead of it.

If Princeton wins at Ithaca, it will move into the driver's seat, since the other teams inevitably will give the Orange and Black some assistance by knocking each other off. The tendency here is to go with the Tigers to win again, because they have Bradley and may develop balance. The teams that

BOB HAARLOW
Basketball Forward

When a sophomore contributes a major defensive performance against a polished, high-scoring senior, it makes news, and Bob Haarlow of Princeton made news Saturday. He held all-Ivy Rick Kaminsky, Yale's versatile, highly-regarded captain, to four field goals and a 25% floor shooting average.

With Kaminsky and Bradley the standouts, outcome of the game hung to a considerable degree on ability of the opposing teams to pare down the output of these two high-scoring stars. Assigned to Kaminsky in Coach Bill Van Breda Kolff's tight man-to-man defense, Haarlow clobbered the Yale star's field-goal productivity while committing only two personal fouls. The Eli captain had 11 free throws at the end of the evening, but the majority of these were awarded him for fouls called on other Princeton players.

Tabbed as a starter during pre-season practice, the 19-year old sophomore has shown steadily increasing ability after an inconsistent start. He began his varsity career impressively, ran into trouble against some of the veteran quintets the Tigers played during the holidays, but was a major scoring factor in the twin Ivy League triumphs last weekend.

Haarlow's downcourt position in the Princeton offense often makes him the target for Bill Bradley's eye-popping assists, and the Tiger sophomore frequently converts on these situations. In the space of 45 seconds toward the end of the first half against the Elis, he contributed three baskets that pushed Princeton's advantage to an insurmountable 11-point lead.

Bob's brother Bill preceded him as a three-year letterman at Princeton and van Breda Kolff has high regard for their basketball-playing ability. "He doesn't attract much attention," the Tiger coach has said of the current member of his starting five, "but when you look at the scoresheet at the end of the game to see who's in double figures, you'll find Bob there most of the time."

The 6-2 resident of Hinsdale, Ill., who raised his 9.1 average with a 15-point per game output against Brown and Yale, has a solid 48.3% field-goal shooting mark. If he continues to blend this with the kind of defense that held Kaminsky in check, the Tigers will move a giant step down the path toward retention of their Ivy title.

SKATERS SEEK REVENGE

Against Cornell Saturday. An opportunity to even the score with Cornell for a 5-4 overtime defeat it absorbed at Ithaca last week confronts the Princeton hockey team Saturday. Game-time in Baker Rink will be 2 o'clock.

The Ithaeans, whose roster includes nine Canadians, rallied from an early 2-1 deficit to turn back the Tigers. Mike Spence and Mike Peterman, Princeton sophomores who also call the Dominion home, scored in the first period to give the Orange and Black a short-lived advantage.

Cornell's three-goal outburst in the second round appeared to have the contest locked up but Don Weeden and Gordie Paik scored for Princeton to create the deadlock. The Red then beat goalie Dick Reece at 2:29 of the overtime period for its second Ivy triumph of the season. It has defeated Yale and lost to Harvard.

The Tigers had no trouble with an outmanned, under-conditioned St. Nicholas team Saturday. It was an 8-2 final and no contest after the first round, which ended 1-1. The losers were out of gas after the first 20 minutes, and if they can't provide more opposition than they did Saturday, they'll have trouble making up a schedule next year.

Steve Cook scored twice against the Nicks, also getting credit for an assist, while Pony Fraker was among the six other Princetonians scoring. Barry Van Gerbig, one-time Princeton goalie, had an extremely poor time of it, the five shots that got by him in the third period including one that did not have enough momentum to hit the back of the cage.

The Tigers were scheduled to travel to Troy, N. Y., Wednesday for a game with Rensselaer Polytech. Following the Cornell game, they'll be idle until a trip to Hanover to face Dartmouth on February 1.

PHS LOSES TO MADISON

Despite Top Effort. Just when it looked as if the Princeton High School basketball team had solved its problems, it ran into a red-hot Madison squad Friday evening and absorbed its third setback in five games. Although the Little Tigers produced their best offense of the season—63 points—they were no match for Madison's Wayne Dropp who scored 39 of his team's 79 points for a school record.

In pursuit of their third victory, the Little Tigers will face formidable opposition. Friday evening at 7:30 they will host Bridgewater-Raritan, who, according to PHS coach Tony Borzok, is undefeated this season. Last year, PHS edged this school in overtime.

On Tuesday afternoon at 3:45 PHS will entertain Somerville. Somerville has won at least four games, according to Borzok, and they should be tough. "They're all tough," added Tony.

Played before 500 partisan onlookers, the game between Madison and PHS represented their first meeting in any sport. Madison is its fourth year of existence and this is the first year it will have a graduating class. Borzok feels that a fine relationship in sports will develop between the schools, with Madison located near New Brunswick.

In discussing the contest, Borzok reported that Madison "got us right at the beginning. They used a press at the start which we didn't expect because when we scouted them they used a zone. By the time we recovered, we didn't know if they were going to use a press or a zone and it kept us off balance."

Praises His Team. "Our own boys played a good game;

TELEPHONE PROGRESS REPORT 1963

Over $118,000,000—a record sum—was spent for new construction to provide telephone facilities for a growing New Jersey. For example, thirteen new central offices were finished and seven others enlarged. And to keep pace with growth, about 125,000 new phones were installed throughout the state.

Pioneering in new communications technologies continued: Telstar II was launched; installation work began at the first electronic central office in Succasunna; and Touch-Tone, the new push-button phone that resulted from Bell Laboratories research, was introduced in Summit and Chatham.

Over 4,000 young men and women began careers at the Telephone Company during 1963. The annual payroll is approximately $150,000,000—a sum that's important to local economies.

Other Bell System operations in New Jersey were important, too. For instance, in Kearny, Western Electric manufactured cables containing 42½ billion feet of wire—enough to circle a single strand 340 times around the globe. A big job—and a big contribution to our state's prosperity.

NEW JERSEY BELL

...vocational schools have an annual enrollment averaging nearly 35,000 students

New Jersey has 15 county vocational schools, 6 city vocational schools and 6 city schools with vocational departments, all of which provide private instruction in trades and industries as well as agriculture, home economics, and practical nursing. These schools, located throughout the state, have both day and evening programs and many other general high schools offer extensive vocational programs. Wherever possible, the subject matter is geared to the special needs of the area.

Thirty-six state approved private trade schools help swell the total enrollment in the vocational training program to over 38,000. There are 891 teachers and counselors in vocational fields throughout the state. Skilled labor attracts industry which in turn creates more jobs. Year after year, 85% of the graduates of the vocational-technical high schools are placed in the occupation for which training was given. This is indicative of the selectivity of students, quality of instruction and the ability of graduates to perform and progress on their job.

NEWCOMERS TO PHS BASKETBALL TEAM: Unexpected help from transfer students, which coaches always welcome, materialized this season in double-barrel fashion for Princeton High coach Tony Borzok in the person of Jim Tucker (left) and Ron Pulling. From Maryland, the 6-2 Tucker is a top rebounder and has worked his way up to a starting berth. Pulling, a 6-1 transfer from Oklahoma, provides added bench strength. (Staff Photo)

there's no question about that. We were able to fast break, we got points, we were moving. The momentum was still there from Tuesday. Except for this one surprise of their using a press, we might have done better."

The chief reasons for the visitors' downfall were the shooting of Dropp and the playmaking of Glenn Davis. Time and again, Davis set up shots for Dropp under the basket.

Princeton connected on 40% of its shots, but it was guilty of a much lower effort — 26 percent — in the first half. Then a hot third quarter for the home team in which Madison outscored PHS 25-12 snuffed out hopes of any comeback.

Still, the Little Tigers gave it a try. At the start of the final period, they reeled off nine consecutive points. Wilbur Hines, who was high for the losers with 17, got 11 of them in the final eight minutes. But it was too late.

Jim Tucker played a fine game for the losers, scoring 14 points and grabbing 11 rebounds. Co-captain Tom Waters added eight and was second behind Tucker in rebounds with nine as the Little Tigers outrebounded Madison by four. Kerry Klink played well in the back court for Princeton.

In the Jayvee game, PHS won its fifth in a row without a defeat, topping the Madison reserves, 55-49. Anthony Adams and Mike Underwood scored 14 and 15 points to pace the victors.

HUN FIVE SPLITS

Solebury Here Saturday. The Hun School basketball team, 2-1 in Penn-Jersey League play, will face its sternest test of the young season Saturday when it will host top-rated Solebury. The game will be played in the Princeton Seminary gymnasium at 8.30 p.m.

According to Hun coach Bob Simpson, Solebury is beating everybody and looks "like the class of the league." Although Simpson hasn't been able to scout Solebury personally, he reported the coach of Germantown Friends told him that Solebury has both "size and speed." "They've got it all," he said.

Hun was able to maintain a good position in the League on the strength of its 54-43 victory Friday in Philadelphia over Germantown Friends. The Red and Black broke away to a 16-9 margin in the first quarter and was never headed. Seven Hun players figured in the scoring, but Captain Scott Page, Tryg Slettleland and Mike Miller combined for the bulk of it, accounting for 41 points. Both Hun triumphs have occurred on the road, prompting Simpson to comment that "it looks as if we have a road show. We play better away than we do at home."

Hun sustained its lone defeat — a 65-53 setback — last week here at the hands of George School. It was unexpected.

"There was some question about us being stale after the holidays," said Simpson, "but they pressed us from the beginning and we weren't able to handle it. It threw us off balance and they just ran away from us."

Scott Page led the losers with 20. He was followed by Ted Isaacson with 10.

ART
In Princeton

PAINTING & SCULPTURE

At Gallery 100, Paintings by Paul Hollister Jr. and sculpture by Arturo Bassola are combined for this first exhibition of the new year at Gallery 100. Arturo Bassola is a young artist who was born in Havana and later came to Madison College in Dayton, Va., where he intended to major in business studies. An art appreciation course opened his eyes to his real interests and talents in the field of the arts, and he changed his major to this study.

Since college he has painted and sculpted and worked in ceramics and is now teaching art in the public schools of Milford, Del., while concentrating, in his own work, on welded-steel sculpture. One of Mr. Bassola's first sculptures, a peacock in welded steel and bronze was seen in Princeton at the 1962 Festival of Arts.

He has shown frequently since this time and has won prizes in almost all the competitive exhibitions he has entered from 1960 on. He is currently working on an important commission for eight monumental sculptures for the Delaware Pavilion of the New York World's Fair.

Vortex. A prodigious worker, Mr. Bassola can show only a small portion of his last year's work, but the selection is representative of his ideas and techniques in abstract, figure and animal compositions. The only purely abstract piece here is "Vortex," the dominating sculpture of the show as it forms not only the pivot of the overall arrangement but its idea and construction is big.

Made from flexible bands of steel, it represents the birth of a storm, "a balance of movement in space." Its whirling eddies draw you into its action and you have the impression that, though this piece took the artist 100 hours of welding alone and two and a half months of labor, the storm was short and violent.

The Animal Sculpture. A rare understanding of animals on the part of this sculptor results in some very appealing pieces of animal sculpture. "Rhinoceros" is the homely, awkward personality we know but this one is humorous. He stands stolid on his pins broad of beam with an incongruous twist of tail, his eye, a mere hole manages to twinkle and his ears flit at a saucy angle. He's delightful.

"Giraffe" may be even more of an achievement for its fine sense of proportion, the delicacy of the soft ears and slender legs made dainty by an open-work construction. "Prickly Porcupine" is the soul of stubborn resistance as he digs his toes in and stands his challenge. The most dramatic piece of the lot is "Fighting Cocks" which is almost a mobile with its feeling of air and dust and ruffled feathers.

For the usual connotion of steel, there is a surprising amount of texture and actual color in this sculpture caused, we are told, by the different degrees of heat applied. When we asked Mr. Bassola how he worked, he answered, "It's a question of getting the hang of the torch." His torch certainly responds to his touch.

Paintings. Paul Hollister majored in Fine Arts at Harvard. After graduation he worked as an editor for Doubleday and later taught journalism at New York University.

He is a self taught artist who began exhibiting in 1947 when Emily Genauer, of the New York Herald-Tribune, selected his work for the Critic's Show at the Grand Central Galleries in New York City. Since that time he has shown widely throughout the country and in England and is represented in many private collections and in the permanent collection of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Miss Genauer has described his work as "semi-abstract, uncommonly lively in design, airy in organization and sensitive in mood." The two paintings which, in this show, tally closest with her critique are "Winter" and "East River," both based on variations and striations of color upon a white ground.

As one in journalism must often reduce terms to the basic and clearest definitions, Mr. Hollister has used an economy of terms, in real simplification here. "Winter" has very little range in color, its layers of color, however, recede into the mauve sky and leave you with a nice wintry chill.

"Layers of Summer," a smaller and more gaily colored version warms you up again, and, at this writing, with the sleet slashing at the window pane, it is encouraging to note that Mr. Hollister has seen and painted early spring in Princeton. It impressed him as a lively combination of vivid blue and chartreuse . . . "Can Spring be far behind?"

Light Effects. Working with the fascinating changes of light, Mr. Hollister has painted two canvasses, "Evening Moths" and Evening Sunlight," which are less defined in technique. When one looks at the sun, the central colors and details are wiped out and the color appears brightly around the edge. Flicks of sunlight, pure color, contrast with the soft ball of mixed and tonal section of landscape.

"Snow" is a pictorial contrast of reaction to the blinding sunlight on snow and the softer effect of a landscape gentled in shape and outline by the same snow in less light.

A completely different approach is taken in "Cherry Blossoms at Washington Monument." This one has the basic pattern of the kaleidoscope. In fact, the artist looked at the blossoms through a kaleidoscope and then went home to paint his impression in a varicolored, symmetrical design, the cherry blossoms appearing as if reflected in the water of the pool and with the ecotral colors flat and pure. This show continues at Gallery 100 through January 30.

"Have Done With Hypocrisy."

To the Editor of Town Topics.

I am sure a number of Borough citizens were pleased to read in Mayor Patterson's latest annual message that he is in favor of open housing and that he is against "the pressures for high density, luxury apartments" and also against the pressures for "extensions of the business districts."

What I failed to find in the Mayor's otherwise more or less incontrovertible message is that he is in favor of low-cost housing. Until the remarkably long standing lack of such housing is overcome, I fear that open housing, even if it should ever become effectual in Princeton, would mean very little for the majority of those it is supposed to help.

How much open housing could persons earning $1.50-$2 an hour absorb in this town, where one-and-two bedroom apartments in the most modest residential areas generally rent for over $100 a month? Do Princetonians not wait to include such wage-earners? If so, we should say so, and have done with hypocrisy.

More than six years ago, when I first came to Princeton, I was told by a white minister that the town's chief problem was low-cost housing. Since then I have often heard the subject raised in local 'white' citizens' groups (and as quickly dropped), but never effectively denied, and usually bitterly affirmed.

It is not only a serious problem for those whom open housing is supposed to benefit. Borough policemen, for example, who are required by their job to take residence here, normally, with their admittedly minimal salaries, pay through the nose when they try to exchange the housing they had elsewhere for what they can get here, and they often find it difficult to raise a family because of real estate costs.

Notwithstanding our Mayor's brave implication that enough is enough, I take it we already in Princeton want the real estate boost to boom on. Otherwise, why don't we and why doesn't the Borough do something about low-cost housing, without which open housing is, for most, a farce!

the class entirely in French.

TO GIVE VACCINE AGAIN

Second Phase on Sunday. Type 3 Sabin oral vaccine will be distributed at 26 clinic sites Sunday as Mercer County begins the second phase of its largest mass polio immunization program. Three of the clinics will be held in Princeton; and, as was the case with Type One immunization, will also be repeated on the following Sunday January 26).

Dr. Harold L. Davis, chairman of the county campaign, noted that all residents should take this second dose whether or not they received the Type 1 vaccine in December. Salk vaccine, he added, provides only temporary protection, and furthermore the Sabin drug can prevent one from being a carrier of polio.

Those being administered the vaccine are asked to donate 25 cents, but officials have said that no one will be refused a dose. The drive is sponsored by the Mercer County Component Medical Society and the National Foundation of the March of Dimes.

The flavorless vaccine is administered orally in a small cube of sugar. The third dose — Type 2 — will be given out on March 8.

Clinics in Princeton, open from noon to 4, will be at Princeton Hospital, 253 Witherspoon Street; Chambers Street Fire House and Harrison Street Fire House. Other area clinics will be open from 11 to 4.

They include Notre Dame High School, Lawrenceville, Lawrence Township; and Central High School, Pennington, serving residents of Pennington, Hopewell and Hopewell Township. Each clinic will be staffed by physicians, pharmacists, nurses and volunteer personnel.

OPEN HOUSE ON SUNDAY

At New Study Hall. Residents are invited to inspect the Princeton Study Center's new study hall at 16 John Street. Open house will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The study hall, formerly held in the Dorothea House, offers students in grades six through 12 a quiet spot for evening study, resource books and help with homework. Located behind Kopp's Bicycles, the entrance faces the Chambers Street parking yard.

Thomas F. Caldwell, chairman of the study hall committee, is in charge of the open house. Board members and study assistants will be on hand to describe the program.

Students serving as guides are Billy Brooks, Sheila Craig, John Duncan, Douglas Griggs, Charmain Madden, Larry Madden, Peter McCrohan, Frank Soda and Viola Wooten. Co-

EXPEDITION PLANNED

Hebron's Tangled History. Last week, Jordao's King Hussein promised Pope Paul VI to protect the shrines of the Holy Land. The promise givea added security to the first archaeological exploration of fabled Hebron, set for this summer hy Philip C. Hammond of Princeton Seminary.

Located in Jordan, 18 milea south of Jerusalem, Hebron is the traditional silte of the tombs of the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob It was the first capital of King David Herod beautified it; Hadrian located a major market in Its fertile hills, and Constantine erected Christian churches around it.

"Crusaders called Hebron the 'Castle of St. Abraham'," says Dr. Hammond "It was the southernmost fortress of the Latin Kingdom. Bul with the triumph of Islam, Hebron reverted to its high position as a Muslim religious site."

Dr. Hammond, a small and wiry man who smiles with enthusiasm as he talka, says, "The Holy Land Is one vast museum You can virtually come hy antiquities with your very toes!"

Clearanees Needed. A veteran of explorations at ancient Petra, Dr. Hammond spent last summer in Jordan securing clearances from King Hussein, government officials, various U.S. missions and local authorities. "In the process, an almost unimaginable quantity of tea, coffee, lemonade and Pepsi Cola was consumed as we observed the time-honored amenities of the Near East Luncheons were also in true Arabic style — vast quantities nf food, leisurely consumed as business talk progressed."

He discussed plans for next summer's dig. "We will keep away from the burial place itself, because it is a holy place. There are five sites picked out and we will go right on down, hopefully, to bedrock . . . from modern times down to paleolithic — with luck!"

The mosque at Hebron, he went on, marks the traditional site of the cave of Machpelah. He quotes the Biblical phrases: "And Abraham buried Sarah in the cave of the field of Machpelah, east of Mamre . . . Abraham breathed his last, and was gathered to his people . . . Isaac and Ishmael burled him in the cave of Machpelah"

The lower part of the mosque, Dr. Hammond discovered, is built of Herodian masonry. "It was a Christian church of sorts in the crusader period, but it is now a mosque of extreme sanctity."

Princetnn Backers. Among the supporters of Dr. Hammond's survey last summer were the Rev. Earl L. Douglass of 41 Armour Road; Dr. James I McCord, president of Princeton Seminary; and Roy Pfautch, formerly assistant to the Seminary president.

Dr. Hammond, who speaks Arahic fluently, lived with the Bedouins during his work at Petra, and with a local family while in Hebron. "I seem to have gained a sort of 'Lawrency' reputation," he eomments with amusemeot.

"My feeling as a Biblical archeologist is that excavating is one of the disciplines of modern Biblical research to gain a picture of Biblical times. Some of our best scholars, by the way, are the Dominicans who are working in Jerusalem and the Franciscans now digging al one of Herod's retreats, outside of Bethlehem."

Involved in his project at present are the Seminary, the University of Southern California, the Southwestern Baptist Theologieal Seminary, The American Council of Learned Society, The American Friends of the Middle East and others.

"Very often," Dr. Hammond concludes, "we fiod materials which amplify and explain the Bihlical stories. This is a great satisfaction."

MOSLEM AND CHRISTIAN: King Hussein of Jordan (left) will supply military transport for an American archaeological expedition to Hebron next summer, planned by Dr. Philip Hammond (right) of Princeton Seminary. The delicate matter of clearances for work at one of the Arab world's holiest places was expedited by the five-year drought suffered at Hebron and by growing importance of tourism in Jordan.

SUNDAY SALES SCOTCHED

By Pennington Clergy. Pressure from five clergymen this week caused the Pennington Quality Market to abandon plans to be open on Sundays. The group is trying to bring about the Sunday closing of the nearby Shop Rite Market.

"We felt that these Sunday sales would mushroom in the rest of the community," said the Rev. Walter Coates, pastor of Pennington's First Presbyterian Church, "forcing other stores to be open when they don't want to be."

Alsn participating were the Rev. James W. Marshall, Pennington Methodist Church, the Rev. Arthur Musson, St. Matthew's Episcopal Church; the Rev. Frank Zgliczynski, St. James Roman Catholic Church, and the Rev. Curtis L. Hoffman of Calvary Baptist Church, Hopewell.

"It isn't a matter of '100 years back' or Sunday blue laws, or who's invading 'our Sunday'," Mr. Coates comments. "It is more a matter of citizenship. Who speaks for the community? The clergy have made the first attempt at both stores.

"A group of local laymen plan to talk with the owner of the Shop Rite store. We don't contemplate anything like a boycott . . . We want to stay in the field of diplomacy."

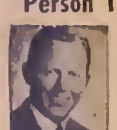
Person To Person



Cory S. Kammler

An acquaintance said, "It would pay us all frequently to remember this ancient proverb: 'An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure,' because it is valuable in every phase of life . . . can you think," he said, "of anything at all, to which it would not apply?" We had to admit we couldn't . . . in fact we immediately thought how perfectly it fitted the care of an automobile. Perhaps the car that gets regular preventive maintenance from factory trained specialists gives us the perfect example of the adage's truth. There can be no doubt that it then gives more pleasure, with longer, more economical life . . . and then it pays that extra bonus of a bigger trade-in allowance, in effect making every 'ounce' worth several 'pounds'. However, there is one other "must." You should insist on dealing with a firm which has a firm policy of seeing to it that their mechanics do even the small things conscientiously. We do just that . . . another measure of our loyalty and conviction that our business is a public trust. May we please serve you? SEASON RESUMES

For Larry Athletes. The Lawrenceville School basketball team returned from Christmas vacation only to lose its first game of the season to Bordentown Military Academy, 73-58, on Saturday. The Larries will be seeking victories number four and five in home contests with Pennington and St. Benedict's Prep this week.

BMI, undefeated in five games, moved to 20-9 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Red and Black also lost the services of Jack Purdy in the game's early moments when he sprained his ankle going after a rebound.

A 23-point spurt by the visitors in the second period narrowed the Cadets' lead to 34-32 at halftime. But BMI, led by Tom Busch and Tom Lee, increased its three-quarter lead to 55-48 and took complete command in the final period.

Busch led all scorers with 23 points and Lee wound up with 15. Jim Mitchell had 14 points for Lawrenceville.

The Larry swimming team traveled to New Haven Saturday to absorb a 72-23 defeat by the Yale freshmen. Phil Riker took two of the three first places for the visitors in the 100-yard butterfly and the 200-yard freestyle. This week its opponents are the Princeton freshmen and Mercersburg Academy.

Chatham High and Woonsocket will provide this week's competition for the hockey team. The Larries defeated West Haven High, 3-1, on Saturday.

Christian Faiths

The Protestant and Roman Catholic clergy of the community again invite residents to a "Service of Prayer for the Unity of the Christian Church." The service will be held at 8:15 p.m. next Wednesday in Whig Hall on the Princeton University campus.

A similar service was held for the first time in Princeton a year ago. In spite of a heavy rainstorm which turned to sleet during the early evening, Whig Hall was crowded to capacity.

The week of January 18 through 25 is observed in Roman Catholic churches as an Octave of Prayer for the unity of the Church. The same dates are observed by Protestants' World Council of Churches as a week of prayer for Christian unity.

Sponsored jointly by the Princeton Pastors' Association and the Roman Catholic clergy, the service has been planned by the Rev. Edward C. Henry, pastor of St. Paul's, and a committee from the Pastors' Association.

By Lahiere-Kane. The fifth Princeton car dealer to locate on "automobile row," Route 206 north of the Borough, will be Lahiere-Kane Inc. of 15-17 Spring Street. Moving day will be on or about April 1.

Herbert R. Kane, president, has signed a long-term lease with Willham Bucel for the 15,000 sq. ft. building at 830 State Road. The new quarters will enable the company to expand its new car display and repair shop facilities.

The location backs up to Cherry Valley Road, allowing a safe entrance and exit to the new showrooms from both roads. The building has a 150-ft. all-glass front and a covered sales terrace extending the full width.

Lahiere-Kane, previously operated by Jacquet Lahiere is an authorized new car dealer for Rambler, Renault, Peugeot, MG and Austin-Healey. Mr. Kane became president in 1959. His home is at 606 Ewing Street.

WE NOMINATE

Marguerite Loud McAneny, a dedicated Princetonian over the past three decades, whose contributions to, and concern for, the community and professional theatre in Princeton have prompted a group of her close associates to project in her honor an unusual gathering in which all segments of Princeton will be participating. Early in the month ahead (the evening of February 8th at The Nassau Inn) representatives of Town and Gown, of secondary schools, of area-wide organizations will assemble for a Testimonial Dinner dedicated to underscoring her major role in developing McCarter Theatre as a Center for the Performing Arts.

Long-time patrons of McCarter, completed in 1929 and in 1964 New Jersey's sole year-'round legitimate theatre, will find it difficult to reconcile themselves to a "McAneny-less boxoffice." Ever since she established her home here in 1931, Mrs. McAneny, wife of the able headmaster of Princeton Country Day School, has been identified with McCarter in either an unofficial or executive capacity. During the past 18 years, first as "assistant," then as the structure's "Theatre Manager" and since 1958 as "General Manager," she has been both a generating force and the cohesive element in the evolution of the laudable McCarter concept.

Unlike the majority of such events, the February 8th Testimonial, at which McCarter and the McCarter Guild will announce the initial recipient of the Marguerite Loud McAneny Professional Theater Scholarship, will not mark Mrs. McAneny's retirement. She is relinquishing her heavy responsibilities in McCarter so that she will be able to devote her full time and talents to the Princeton University Library's excellent Theatre Collection, the holdings of 1,000's of plays, volumes, prompt-books, play-bills and related items she has "serviced" as Curator on a part-time basis for the past 27 years.

A 62-year old native of Pittsburgh and the first member of her family to demonstrate any sustained interest in "the theatre," Mrs. McAneny was graduated from Barnard College in 1923 with Phi Beta Kappa laurels. Following graduate work in The Sorbonne, she landed a position as a play-reader with producer Gilbert Miller and subsequently combined this exposure to Broadway with teaching in the dramatic workshop of Columbia University's Department of English. From Manhattan it was only a short step southward to a founding membership in the Princeton Community Players in the early 1930's.

Recalling that the inaugural offering of the Community Players in 1933 was postponed by the tragic death of the University's 11th president, John Grier Hibben, Mrs. McAneny, the mother of three college graduates, twice headed the Players — first in World War II and again in the late 1940's at the time the Players acquired "Avalon," the Henry van Dyke residence which was razed to make way for the present-day "Y." Through the Players, headquartered in McCarter for years, Mrs. McAneny came to know every cranny of McCarter, gained first-hand knowledge of such realities as "hard wood," "total dead" and "full tickets" and joined the McCarter staff in 1946.

For what McCarter's Executive Director, Arthur Lithgow, terms "her amazing and truly remarkable term of service in the theatre"; for giving of herself to a program that this year is reaching out to some 50,000 New Jersey 'teen-agers; for contributing immeasurably to Princeton's enjoyment of Princeton; she is our nominee as
